Please be advised that we have received information from the Federal Aviation Administration (the FAA) regarding the effect on the FAA Civil Aircraft Registry Public Documents Room (the PD Room) if a governmental shutdown occurs at midnight, September 30, 2013. If government furloughs occur, the PD Room from which we conduct all FAA-related work (including, but not limited to, requesting and reviewing aircraft records, filing all instruments at closing and monitoring the issuance of fly wires) will be unavailable for use to non-FAA employees. Although the governmental shutdown may be avoided, we feel it's important to keep you apprised of the situation. We will continue to monitor the status of the situation and if/how this may affect the aviation industry.

To view a complete description of the memorandum issued by the FAA, please click here.

If you have any questions about the FAA Civil Registry Public Documents Room, please contact Julia Stein Dittberner or any other member of Crowe & Dunlevy's Aviation/Aircraft practice group.
